satay bar

Food on a stick never looked so good. Squeeze into this teeny satay bar (which started out at the Queen Vic market) and be greeted by the sizzles and smells of Southeast Asia. Choose from skewers like lamb, spicy beef, prawn and vegetables; chicken and spicy tofu (browned on the outside, soft inside) are standout. They're partnered with sides like rice, crispy salad and crunchy veggie chips, and smothered with thick, sweet satay sauce (grandma's secret recipe). There are a few stools to nab, if you're lucky, and outside tables, but it all comes in a handy cardboard pack to take away. Peanut-phobics and claustrophobics: this mightn't be the place for you.
